Senate May Boost New Administration Pay Scales $40 Million; Leadership Bonus Proposed For Officers; 1 June Date Seen

A SENATE Armed Services Subcommittee this week was considering a revised military pay bill that would add $40,000,000 to the Administration's counter proposal to the House-passed measure.

A highlight of the closed-door action by the Senate group was consideration of extra "leadership pay" for as many as 10 per cent of active duty officers.

There was some talk the Stennis Subcommittee would propose as much as $150 extra for some colonels, $100 for lieutenant colonels, $50 for majors and $50 for captains.

Another formula under discussion by the Subcommittee, headed by Senator John Stennis (D-Miss) would authorize an officer differential of 10% for those in grade O-4 and above and 5% extra for those in lower ranks.

The House-passed bill, which carried a price tag of $683,000,000, provided no extra pay for officers to parallel the proficiency pay of up to $150 per month for enlisted personnel.

It is believed likely the Senate Subcommittee will urge that the $1875 four-star pay be retained for the Chairman and the members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, with the probability that the Senate would go along with an Administration-proposed cut to $1700 of others in four-star status.

The House bill stipulated that the raises should become effective the first day of the month following enactment of the legislation. The Administration recommended a 1 July date.

Best guess now is that the Senate will move speedily to vote a pay bill and that a conference meeting between House and Senate members will follow almost immediately.

This would point the way to a 1 June effective date. However, there is a possibility House members may insist on a 1 May date, and that the Administration may demand a 1 July date.

After the House voted the $683,000,000 measure, the Administration made known its belief that the cost was too high, and suggested a $527 million bill.

Revised pay scales were proposed by the Administration and were published in full in last week's issue of THE JOURNAL.

The revised scales carried pay cuts below the House bill which ranged up to $20 per month for thousands of officers and enlisted men, but with increases of $50 or $75 per month for brigadier gen-

NO PSYCHOANALYST; NO PROBLEMS

RAADM. H. G. Rickover, Assistant Chief of the Bureau of Ships for Nuclear Propulsion, was asked during recent House hearings how the crews of the Navy's atomic submarines are "standing up" psychologically.

His answer: "Fine. If we put a psychoanalyst on board, he might find a lot of things wrong with them, but, since we have no such person on board, the men do not know there is a psychological problem; therefore, no such problems have arisen."

Some Highlights In This Week's Issue

MARINE 'COPTER RESERVE — For first time in its history, the Marine Corps is organizing helicopter units in Reserve. They will be activated in May. PAGE 2

GLOBAL FLIGHT CITED — The Air Force's 93d Bombardment Wing has been named to receive the 1957 Mackay Trophy for the first non-stop global flight of jet bombardment aircraft. PAGE 3

"WORLD SERIES" MISSILE SHOOT?

THE JOURNAL has learned that the Navy is making tentative plans to include missile competition in next year's Naval Air Weapons Meet at El Centro, Calif.

Probably, the Sidewinder and Sparrow would be used. Big problem is to work out means for scoring.

A JOURNAL reporter covered the 1958 competition last week at El Centro; his stories appear on pages 3, 6 and 25 of this issue.

AF SCHOOL SELECTIONS — The Air Force this week named 33 lieutenant colonels and 30 majors for the February '59 Armed Forces Staff College course at Norfolk, Va. PAGE 8

BRUSSELS FAIR UNIFIED — All of the Services are slated to participate in the Brussels World's Fair. PAGE 16

Reorganization Hearings Reveal Single-Service, Single-Mission R&D Program

RESEARCH and development programs of the Defense Department will be concentrated under single-mission, single-Service spotlights, if the Congress approves the Pentagon reorganization plan.

This step was explained by Secretary of Defense Neil H. McElroy as the House Armed Services Committee began on 22 April what promises to be a lengthy and detailed study of the proposed reorganization.

The Committee had agreed earlier to take the proposal out of the hands of the 13-member Kilday Subcommittee in order to provide all 37 members of the parent committee with a complete understanding of the plan.

Chairman Carl Vinson (D-Ga.), who has attacked the plan as a move to merge the Armed Forces and create a supreme general staff, declared at the outset of the hearings that his Committee will study the recommendations objectively, and in detail. He made it clear that in his view, partisan considerations will not prevail.

Mr. Vinson said each witness (24 already are scheduled to appear) will stay in the witness chair until every member of the Committee has had all of his questions satisfactorily answered.

Secretary McElroy opened the Pentagon's plea for the reorganization with the statement that he believes most of the fears expressed about the plan will be dissipated as each of the proposals is unfolded and explained.

In other highlights:

• Questions directed to Secretary McElroy show that the Committee is more concerned with the "legal" authority which the proposal will provide than it is with the immediate intentions of Secretary McElroy and President Eisenhower.

• Representative Paul J. Kilday (D-

THE FULL STORY

Readers were given the background for these historic hearings in our issue of 12 April, which published the full text of the President's message on Reorganization, and in the 19 April issue, which published the full text of the official Administration bill. Last week's issue also contained a story giving the counter views of Chairman Carl Vinson (D-Ga.) of the House Armed Services Committee.

Each week, The Journal will bring to its readers detailed reports on how the legislation is faring and how it affects all the Services.

Journal Pinpoints The Fighting Forces—

100 Jump—99 Landings

Brig. Gen. Charles H. Chase, USA, XVIII Airborne Corps and Ft. Bragg, N. C., Deputy Commander and CofS, has made his 100th parachute jump, winning gold jump wings. It was, however, his 99th landing. The general dropped into a tree.

USAF Professor Fencing Judge

Lt. Col. James Jackson, Associate Professor of English at the USAF Academy, Denver, will officiate at the World Fencing Championships in Philadelphia 17-31 August.

Sixth Trip To Asia

Maj. William Payne, USA, who has been with Third Army Headquarters at Ft. McPherson, Ga., has received orders to Korea. Duty in the Pacific is no novelty to him; this makes his sixth tour in Asia, his second to Korea.

Non-Pilot "Pilot" Cited

The 1957 Cheney Award, including $500, will be presented to 1st Lt. Robert M. Kerr, USAF, Personnel Officer with the 67th Tactical Reconnaissance Wing at Yokota AB, Japan. He won the award for "valor and extreme fortitude" when on 13 October 1957, although not a pilot, he took control of a T-33 when the pilot became unconscious. Rather than parachuting to safety and abandoning the stricken pilot, he landed the plane successfully in darkness.

Condition Of The Fleet

The Navy says the material condition of Pacific and Atlantic Fleet ships ranges from "barely satisfactory to good," and the trend toward unsatisfactory condition still continues. By 1962, the Navy says, 70 percent of the active fleet ships will be 15 years old or older. At present, destroyer types and amphibious vessels are barely satisfactory; carriers, submarines, auxiliary vessels and mincraft are satisfactory; only cruisers are in "good" condition.

Heavy Armor Overboard

The Chief of Naval Operations has determined there is no future requirement for any ship armorplate more than three inches thick. About 45,000 tons of such armor (with a book value of about $25 million) will be disposed. Some will be used for testing weapons, some as steel scrap in the construction of new ships; some in special AEC construction; about 57 percent will be offered for sale as scrap beginning this June.

MARINES CREATE RESERVE 'COPTER UNITS

Helicopter squadrons are being formed in the Marine Corps Reserve for the first time in history.

General Randolph McC. Pate, Commandant, has ordered formation of 12 Reserve 'copter squadrons and nine new fighter and attack squadrons.

The 'copter units will enable large ground and air Reserve units to train in the Corps' vertical envelopment doctrine.

The Regular Marine Corps is in the process of streamlining its divisions and wings for operations using the new assault technique.

Headquarters said the Reserve units will start activation on 10 June and that target date for completion of formation is 30 June.

All Services Take Part In Aerojet Reserve Unit

Aerojet-General Corporation has become the first organization to sponsor an Army Reserve Research and Development Unit in California.

Activated at the company's Liquid Rocket Plant in Nimbus, the 6501st R&D Unit is commanded by Reserve Capt. Leon J. Brown, Navy, Marine and Air Force personnel will be attached to it for training. They will use plant facilities for projects in the guided missile and rocket field.

Among those who participated in the unit's activation ceremonies were: Maj. Gen. John W. Harmony, USA, Commander of the XV Army Corps which administers Reserve activities in California, Nevada and Arizona; Robert B. Young, Aerojet-General Vice-President; and Lt. Col. Charles W. Hash, USA, Sacramento Area Army Reserve Commander.

Court Says USAEUR, AF Orders Are Not Inferior

Armed Forces personnel in major commands, which are themselves subordinated to a unified command, are presumed to have knowledge of all general orders and regulations of both commands.

In U.S. v. Stone, decided 18 April, the Court said that even though the U. S. Army Forces, Far East, was subordinate to the U. S. Far East Command, its general orders and regulations could not be considered "inferior" under Article 31 of the Uniform Code of Military Justice. Since AFEE is a "major command" directly under the Department of the Army, knowledge of its regulations may be presumed," the court said.

Thus, lack of knowledge of AFEE regulations cannot be used as a defense by one who is accused of violating them.

The Court emphasized that a "presumption of knowledge" follows regulations of both AFEE and the unified U. S. Far East Command. A similar holding was given the same day in U. S. v. Statton.

USAFI Alaska Unit Moves To Alaska

The U. S. Armed Forces Institute Alaska, a subdivision of the Alaskan Command, will move to Elmendorf AFB, Seattle by 1 July.

Capt. Hoyt C. Bethell is USAFI Commandant.

Schooling conducted by this institute enables members of the Armed Forces to start, add to or complete their education in grade schools and high schools and to receive up to two years of college credits. Over 50,000 Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine, and Coast Guard members have enrolled in Alaska's USAFI program during the past 10 years.

GENERAL JAMES A. VAN FLEET, USMA '15 classmate of President Eisenhower, who retired 31 March 1953, has been recalled to active duty for the purpose of being placed on the regular retired list. He had been on the Temporary Disability Retired List, but has been found fit. General Van Fleet was on 19 March.

Third Star For Gen. Ruffner; AF's Thatcher Heads Bonn MAAG; Shift Navy Flags; USCG Chief OK'd.

MAJ. GEN. CLARK L. RUFFNER, USA, who has been the first MAAG Chief at Bonn, Germany, has been promoted to lieutenant general, succeeding Lt. Gen. Thomas F. Hickey, USA, who retires as CG of the Third Army at Ft. McPherson, Ga.

MAJ. GEN. HERBERT B. THATCHER, USAF, previously Vice Commander of USAFE at Wiesbaden, has replaced General Ruffner as the U. S. top military advisor to the Federal Republic of Germany.

VADM. BERNARD L. AUSTIN, USN, who has been Director of the JCS Joint Staff since 15 March 1956, early next month replaces VAdm. Robert B. Pirie, USN, as Commander of the Second Fleet and the NATO Striking Fleet Atlantic. Admiral Pirie takes over from VAdm. William V. Davis, jr., USN, as Deputy CNO for Air.

CHARLES C. FINUCANE, a WWII Navy ordnance officer, who became Assistant Secretary of the Army for Financial Management 18 August 1954 and Under Secretary 9 February 1955, was given a special retreat review 21 April at Ft. Myer, Va., as he left Pentagon service to return to private business.

VADM. ALFRED C. RICHMOND was confirmed by the Senate 22 April for a second term as Coast Guard Commandant. RADM. James A. Hirshfield was confirmed for a second term as Assistant Commandant. At the same time the Senate confirmed 154 additional nominations, including: one to commander; one to lieutenant commander; 71 to lieutenant (j.g.); 77 to ensign; and four to chief warrant officer.

VADM. Richmond

RUDOLPH W. WEITZ, a former Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense (Properties and Installations) has become Army Civilian Aide for Iowa. His address is #1 56th Street, Des Moines.

RADM. WILLIAM H. LEAHY, USN, Commander, Pearl Harbor Naval Shipyard and 14th Naval District Industrial Manager, T. H., will take command of the Norfolk Naval Shipyard with collateral duties as Industrial Manager 5th Naval District in July.

RADM. WILLIAM A. DOLAN, JR., Commander, Puget Sound Naval Shipyard, Wash., and Industrial Manager 13th Naval District, Seattle, assumes duties as Assistant Chief, Bureau of Ships, for Shipbuilding and Fleet Maintenance in July.

BRIG. GEN. C. COBURN SMITH, USA, Artillery Commander, VII Corps, Europe, has been named Military Attache in Paris, reporting in June.

MAJ. ALBERT F. SCHOEPFER, Director of the Marine Corps Band, and 1st Lt. Dale L. Harpham, Assistant Director, have been nominated by President Eisenhower for lieutenant colonel and captain, respectively. Major Schoepfer has led the Band since 1 May 1955.

Spencer, Commanding Officer, 79th Engineer Group, Capt. R. S. Hansen, Executive Officer, U. S. Army Polar Research and Development Center, Capt. James McWade, Supply Officer, U. S. Army Polar Research and Development Center and Capt. F. E. Weiderhold, Maintenance and Equipment Officer, U. S. Army Polar Research and Development Center.

RADM. Smedberg

RADM. WILLIAM R. SMEDBERG, Superintendent of the U. S. Naval Academy since 3 March 1956, will succeed RADM. Frank W. Fenno, jr., as Commander, Cruiser-Destroyer Force Pacific Fleet. Admiral Smedberg will be relieved in June by RADM. Charles L. Nelson, Commander, Cruiser Division 7. Admiral Nelson assumes collateral duties as Commandant, Severn River Naval Command. The Navy has not yet named a new post for Admiral Fenno.

Will Reorganization Plan Mean Merger? What Functions Can SecDef Abolish?

WILL the President's Reorganization Plan merge the Armed Forces, create a general staff and a single chief of staff?

How do the present statutory roles and missions of the Armed Forces impair the authority of the Secretary of Defense?

Will the Secretary, under the President's plan, have power to abolish, transfer, reassign or consolidate the Corps of Engineers, the Medical Corps, the Veterinary Corps, the Bureau of Yards and Docks, or any of the other bureaus or corps established by law?

These are questions which Chairman Carl Vinson (D-Ga) of the Armed Services Committee has asked Secretary of Defense Neil H. McElroy to answer in writing. Here is the full text of the searching questions asked by Mr. Vinson:

IS THIS MERGER?

"Mr. Secretary: The military departments have been eliminated as executive agents, and the committee system abolished, by Presidential order. The President's bill seeks to enlarge the Joint Staff, put the Joint Staff under the Chairman, eliminate the command or supervision responsibility of the military chiefs for all forces assigned to unified commands, and place the Director of the Joint Staff under the Chairman.

"The Joint Staff will be converted from a planning staff to an operational staff, and the military departments will have responsibility for those remaining non-combatant functions as you may determine they shall have. Forces assigned to the unified commands will be completely under the command of a unified commander and the Joint Staff. For practical purposes, is this merger? Does it create a single Chief of Staff? Does it create a general staff?

WHAT CAN BE ABOLISHED?

"Mr. Secretary, the President's proposal contains language which authorizes you to transfer, reassign, abolish, or consolidate all functions now performed by the military services, including combatant functions. The proposal further states that no function which has been or is hereafter authorized by law to be performed by the Department of Defense or any officer or agency thereof, shall be substantially transferred, reassigned, abolished or consolidated until 30 days after a report shall have been made by the Secretary to the Committee on Armed Services of the Congress.

"Present law provides that you cannot transfer, reassign, abolish or consolidate any of the statutory combatant functions of the respective services. Functions other than combatant functions which are authorized by law to be performed by the Department of Defense may be transferred, reassigned, abolished, or consolidated after a report has been made to both Committees on Armed Services.

"Would you explain to the Committee please why the words 'or any officer or agency thereof' has been inserted in the President's proposal with regard to the consolidation, transfer, abolition, and reassignment of functions now authorized by law?

"Now to clarify this situation even further, would you construe your power under this provision of the President's proposal in such a manner as to authorize you to abolish, transfer, reassign or consolidate the Corps of Engineers, the Medical Corps of the respective services, the Veterinary Corps, the Bureau of Yards and Docks or any of the other bureaus or corps established by law?

DO ROLES & MISSIONS AFFECT SECURITY?

"Mr. Secretary, the combatant functions of the respective services are spelled out in law. These are referred to as roles and missions. The law is very flexible in this regard, merely spelling out the basic roles and missions, but allowing great flexibility in the assignment of new weapons. The Key West Agreement and the so-called 'Functions Papers' is proof of this.

"What is wrong with the present statutory combat functions as now contained in existing law? Why do you want the authority to abolish them, consolidate them, reassign them, or transfer them? Can you give us a single example of how these statutory roles and missions have impaired national security? In what way do these roles and missions carefully enumerated by the Congress, impair your authority?"

Service Academy Superintendents Warn Of Cross-Education Limit; Meeting At New London, They Also Hit Obligated Service Increase

The Superintendents of the four Service Academies (photograph Page 1) have warned there is a danger of expanding joint training at the undergraduate level to a point where it interferes with basic education.

The Superintendents, taking cognizance of legislative proposals that would increase the obligated service tours of graduates, declared this "is not in the best interests of the Academies."

They said "motivation toward a Service career is not a function of obligated services. Motivation toward a career of Service has traditionally been achieved at the undergraduate level of our Academies."

RAdm. Leamy, Host

The Superintendents, who met at the USCG Academy as the guests of RAdm. Frank A. Leamy, USCG, urged that the system of exchange visits by cadets and midshipmen be extended to the Coast Guard and Air Force Academies.

On the matter of nominations, the Superintendents noted that all appointments to the USCGA are made on a competitive basis. They said it would be "a distinct advantage to the other three Academies, and consequently to the Armed Forces, if Congressmen were to nominate for each vacancy allocated to them 10 candidates, and authorize the Service themselves to select the appointees according to an order of merit determined by authorities at the Academies after competitive examinations."

The Superintendents stated:

"In the foreseeable future the Service Academies should continue to provide: a broad basic education in the humanities and social sciences as well as in mathematics and the physical sciences; professional education and training designed to equip the student for a career in his chosen service and at the same time to familiarize him with the concept of total defense and national security; a way of life that instills in the student the highest standards of personal conduct and the ideals of devotion to duty and dedication to the service of the Nation that have been the hallmarks of the American military profession."

Protect Fundamentals

It was agreed that these fundamental objectives should not be sacrificed to provide vocational specialization at the undergraduate level. Any changes in emphasis that may be in order should be designed to eliminate specialization in favor of strengthening basic education and the development of character and the qualities of leadership.

Lt. Gen. Garrison H. Davidson, USMA, Maj. Gen. James E. Briggs, USAFA, RAdm. William R. Smedberg 3d, USNA, and RAdm. Leamy, USCGA, said many aspects of administration and discipline which were of mutual interest to each of the Academies were discussed and ideas exchanged. In addition, some subjects of broad and general nature were not resolved at this meeting, but placed into committees for further study, and discussion at later dates.

General Davidson of the Military Academy extended an invitation to the conferees to meet at West Point in the spring of 1959.

Army Needs 'Copters To Carry Missiles

The Army needs rear-loading helicopters, capable of lifting guided missiles.

This was told to the American Helicopter Society 17 April at their meeting in the Sheraton Park Hotel, Washington, D. C., by Brig. Gen. Ernest F. Easterbrook, Director of Army Aviation.

He noted that the Army is now considering a new helicopter capable of lifting three tons.

"We are rapidly approaching that important condition of marrying-up the aircraft and missile by reducing the weight and size of some of the tactical missiles while the lift capability of Army aircraft is improving," General Easterbrook said. "It is extremely important that the two are in balance; in fact we view it as an operational must."

TRYING A LETHAL LOAD of 600-pound "Bullpup" missiles (three visible), a Navy North American FJ "Fury" jet streaks across a West Coast mountain range. The missile, manufactured by the Martin Company's Orlando, Fla., Plant, is approximately 11 feet long and a foot in diameter. After the pilot discharges a "Bullpup," it is guided to the target by radio signals. The missile was unveiled for the first time at the Naval Air Weapons Meets, held at El Centro, Calif., 17 April.

Navy Unveils "Bullpup"; May Get A-Warhead

NAAS EL CENTRO, CALIF.

New details of the air-to-surface Bullpup missile including possibility of an atomic warhead, were revealed at the third Annual Naval Air Weapons Meet here 17 April.

The 600-pound solid-propellant missile, approximately 11 feet long and one foot in diameter, has four guidance fins fore and aft.

Capt. James G. Sliney, USN, Assistant Director, Guided Missiles Division, Office CNO, who briefed newsmen on Bullpup's performance, said it will be introduced into Fleet units in September or October.

The official Defense Department fact sheet on Service missiles gives the range of the Bullpup as 15,000 feet traveling at speed of Mach 1.8. Captain Sliney told reporters that the range of the weapons extends as far as a pilot can see—perhaps 40,000 feet—under ideal weather conditions. He said the missile's speed exceeds Mach 2.

Breaks In Three

The Martin-produced Bullpup breaks to three sections for convenience of shipping. Captain Sliney said that its quick connection system does not require highly skilled technicians to prepare it for firing. He said the missile's basic simplicity makes it possible for the Navy to put it aboard carriers through the regular supply system without further checkout.

Upon release from an aircraft, Bullpup steered to its target by the pilot. "A moving target offers no problem," Captain Sliney stated.

Bullpup carries 300 pounds of propellant. About one-third of the missile's weight is devoted to the warhead, while

Mackay '57 Trophy Hails Global Flight

The 93d Bombardment Wing of SAC's Fifteenth Air Force will receive the Mackay Trophy for 1957 for the most meritorious flight of the year.

In January 1957, three B-52's of the 93d successfully completed the first non-stop, round-the-world flight of jet bombardment aircraft.

Despite the absence of advance information to the air crews or any other special preparations, this historic flight of 24 hours and 19 minutes, covering a distance of 24,235 miles, at an average speed of 543 miles per hour, "was executed precisely as planned without incident," the Force stated.

With initial briefing for the crews given only 28 hours before takeoff, complete reliance had to be placed on the techniques and procedures used daily in the 93d's mission of training aircrew and maintenance personnel to operate the long range aircraft.

ARMY SONG SALE

A special recording of the Army's official song "The Army Goes Rolling Along" is slated to go on sale by 1 June in Post Exchanges.

The 45 rpm record features renditions of the song by the U. S. Army Chorus on "Side 1" and the U. S. Army Band on "Side 2."

Army officials say this record will become a coveted souvenir item for military personnel and their families and will give them a chance to know and accept the official song.

BRIG. GEN. WILLIAM W. LAPSLEY, Commander of the Engineer Maintenance Center, Columbus, Ohio, will become Ohio River Division Engineer in Cincinnati 1 August. He succeeds Col. Rudolph E. Smyser, Jr., who will retire.

TROOPERS MAY JUMP FOR SPORT

Previously prohibited from making parachute jumps except in connection with official duties or in emergencies, Army men may now participate in sport parachute activities.

Reason for the regulation change: the Army wants to increase interest in parachute activities.

The regulation (AR 95-19) permits qualified Army personnel to participate in local, national and international sport parachute competition under proper safeguards, such as provided by the Parachute Club of America, an affiliate of the National Aeronautic Association.

Army Missile Agency Tells Key Changes

Four key officers at the Army Ballistic Missile Agency, Huntsville, Ala., have shifted to new posts as a result of the recent establishment of the Army Ordnance Missile Command.

New Chief of the ABMA Control Office is Col. Harry M. Murray. His Deputy will be Lt. Col. Daniel F. Shepherd.

Lt. Col. Lee B. James, former Deputy Chief of the Control Office, has been named head of the Research and Development Liaison Branch. Maj. Lincoln B. Hunt has moved up from Assistant Executive Officer to be Executive Officer, Agency.

Col. B. T. Rose Is A/G At Air Defense Center

Col. B. T. Rose, former Deputy Adjutant General of the First Army at Governor's Island, N. Y., has assumed duties as Adjutant General of the Army Air Defense Center, Ft. Bliss, Tex.

He replaces Lt. Col. Boswell Ulmer, transferred to the Eighth Army in Korea.

Colonel Rose has served in the Army for 27 years and in the Arkansas National Guard for four years.

Colonel and Mrs. Rose have a son, 2d Lt. B. T. Rose, Jr., USMA '57, serving with a missile battery at Ft. Monroe, Va., and a daughter, Miss Paula C. Rose.

ARADCOM Field Chiefs Confer With Lt. Gen. Hart

Air defense commanders from the major field commands of the United States Army Air Defense Command conferred in Colorado Springs 21 April.

The conference called by Lt. Gen. Charles E. Hart, the Commanding General of USARADCOM, was to review the state of readiness and effectiveness of the command's nationwide guided missile defense system.

Also attending the conference, at Ent AFB, were USARADCOM liaison officers to the U. S. Continental Army Command, Ft. Monroe, Va., and the U. S. Army Air Defense Center, Ft. Bliss, Tex. Commanders and liaison officers conferred in the morning with General Hart. Brig. Gen. D. B. Johnson, Chief of Staff and other officers on General Hart's staff at USARADCOM.

Among those attending were Brig. Gen. Legare K. Tarrant, commanding general, 1st Region, USARADCOM, Ft. Totten, N. Y.; Maj. Gen. Parmer W. Edwards, commanding general, 2d Region, USARADCOM, Ft. Meade, Md.; Maj. Gen. Eugene F. Cardwell, commanding general, 5th Region, USARADCOM, Ft. Sheridan, Ill.; Maj. Gen. Edward J. McGee, commanding general, 6th Region, USARADCOM, Ft. Baker, Calif.; Col. Pokey, time consuming surface travel actually is uneco-unnecessary per diem allowances, pay dollars, money for overnight accommodations and meals enroute, and "stop-

In many cases, the price of a Scheduled Airlines ticket is lower than surface fare plus Pullman — yet Scheduled man or a platoon, you'll get 'em there cheaper, faster, fresher, — via the Scheduled Airlines!

Skipjack Skipper; New Chiefs Named

LCDR. WILLIAM H. BEHRENS, JR., the son of RADM. and Mrs. William B. Behrens of Harrisburg, Pa., the husband of the former Betty Taylor of Tampa, Fla., has been given command of the atomic submarine Skipjack, to be launched 26 May at General Dynamic Corporation's Electric Boat Division, Groton, Conn. A '43 USNA graduate, he organized the Nuclear Power School at the New London, Conn., Submarine Base; for the past year he was assigned to the Naval Reactors Branch of the AEC.

FEBRUARY EXAMINATIONS will result in 3381 promotions to CPO beginning 16 May (69), followed with increments on 16 July (856); 16 September (839); 16 November (820); and a final group of 797 on 16 January 1959. This year's list is described as "considerably less" than in recent years.

SELECTED FROM 20,000 high school seniors and graduates, 1568 candidates have been named for the 1958 NROTC Program at 52 leading colleges and universities. Last week's issue of THE JOURNAL pointed out that the Navy has had a retention rate of less than 20 per cent among Holloway Plan graduates, following completion of obligated tours.

The Navy expects inactivation preparation work on most of the vessels to be completed by 30 June.

NAAS EL CENTRO, CALIF.

MARINE Corps pilots emerged as individual champions in the air-to-air and air-to-ground phases of the Third Annual Naval Air Weapons Meet here last week.

In the air-to-air Day Fighter competition, Capt. Charles O. Hiatt, of Marine Fighter Squadron 232, poured 332 slugs into the banner to earn the title "Top Gun of 1958."

Commanded by Lt. Col. Jay W. Hubbard, the "Red Devils" of VMF-232 are based at MCAS Kaneohe Bay, Hawaii. The Squadron flies North American FJ-4 "Furies."

Despite Captain Hiatt's individual air-to-air superiority—he scored 80 points more than his nearest rival—his team was nosed out by Navy Fighter Squadron 111, based at NAS Alameda. The Alameda "Sundowners," piloting North American FJ-3 "Furies," won first place in the Day Fighter events, posting a score of 668.

Sqdns. Lock In Tie

When Meet officials completed tallying the last banners in the air-to-air shoot, it was revealed that Colonel Hubbard's Kaneohe Bay Squadron and VF-13, of NAS Cecil Field, Fla., were deadlocked in second place with 644 scores—the first tie in Meet history. VF-13 is led by LCdr. Henry S. Barbour.

The judges ordered a "shoot off." When the smoke cleared, VMF-232 had bested "Fighting Thirteen" by 21 points. VMF-232 poured 79 hits into the tow-banner to VF-13's 58. The "Fighting Thirteen" Squadron flies Grumman F9F-8 "Cougars."

ATU-223, stationed at NAAS Beville,

Tex., representing the Naval Air Training Command, took fourth slot, and VMF-333, flying out of NAS Miami, was fifth.

Second place individual honors in the Day Fighter Competition went to Lt. Edwin "C" Johnson, of VF-13, who scored 252. VF-111's Lt. (jg) R. L. Mudge scored 228 to take the place position. Cdr. Frank E. Miller, VF-111's Commanding Officer, and Lt. (jg) Robert M. Jenny, VF-13, punctured the tow-target 192 and 184 times to garner fourth and fifth positions, respectively.

The air-to-air events were fired 30,000 feet.

Wins Attack Laurels

Capt. John W. Detro, of Marine Attack Squadron 311, MCAS El Toro, Calif., won the individual crown in the air-to-ground shoot with a final score of 1838 points—eight points higher than runnerup Lt. (jg) Frederick P. Crosby, who flies the "Thunderbolts" of Navy Attack Squadron 176. VA-176 is comprised of Douglas propeller-driven AD "Skyraiders" and makes its home at Cecil Field.

The Light Attack Division of the Meet consisted of eight separate sorties, including two high dive weapons deliveries, two air-to-ground rocket strikes, two medium dive bombing events, one one-shoulder bomb loft and a medium angle bomb loft.

VMA-311's 1st Lt. Frederick S. Dzikowski, flying an F9F-8 "Cougar," startled observers with his deadly accuracy in the difficult over-the-shoulder bomb loft event. For his effort, the Lieutenant garnered 483 points, the highest mark for a single event in the entire Light Attack competition.

Credit Union Sets

All-Time High

An all-time record in membership and assets has been reported by the Navy Federal Credit Union in Washington, D. C.

Compiling its figures for 1957, Navy Federal lists its membership as 17,520 and total assets at the end of the year as $4.7 million. Its 1957 dividend for shareholders was set at 4.5 per-cent.

The Credit Union has expanded its advertising budget for 1958 in order to acquaint Navy and Marine officers worldwide with its services.

Fleet Missile Subs

Under Construction

Construction is underway on the first two Fleet Ballistic Missile submarines which General Dynamics Corporation's Electric Boat Division is building for the Navy at Groton, Conn.

The submarine hull section of the SSN-FBM 598 is taking shape.

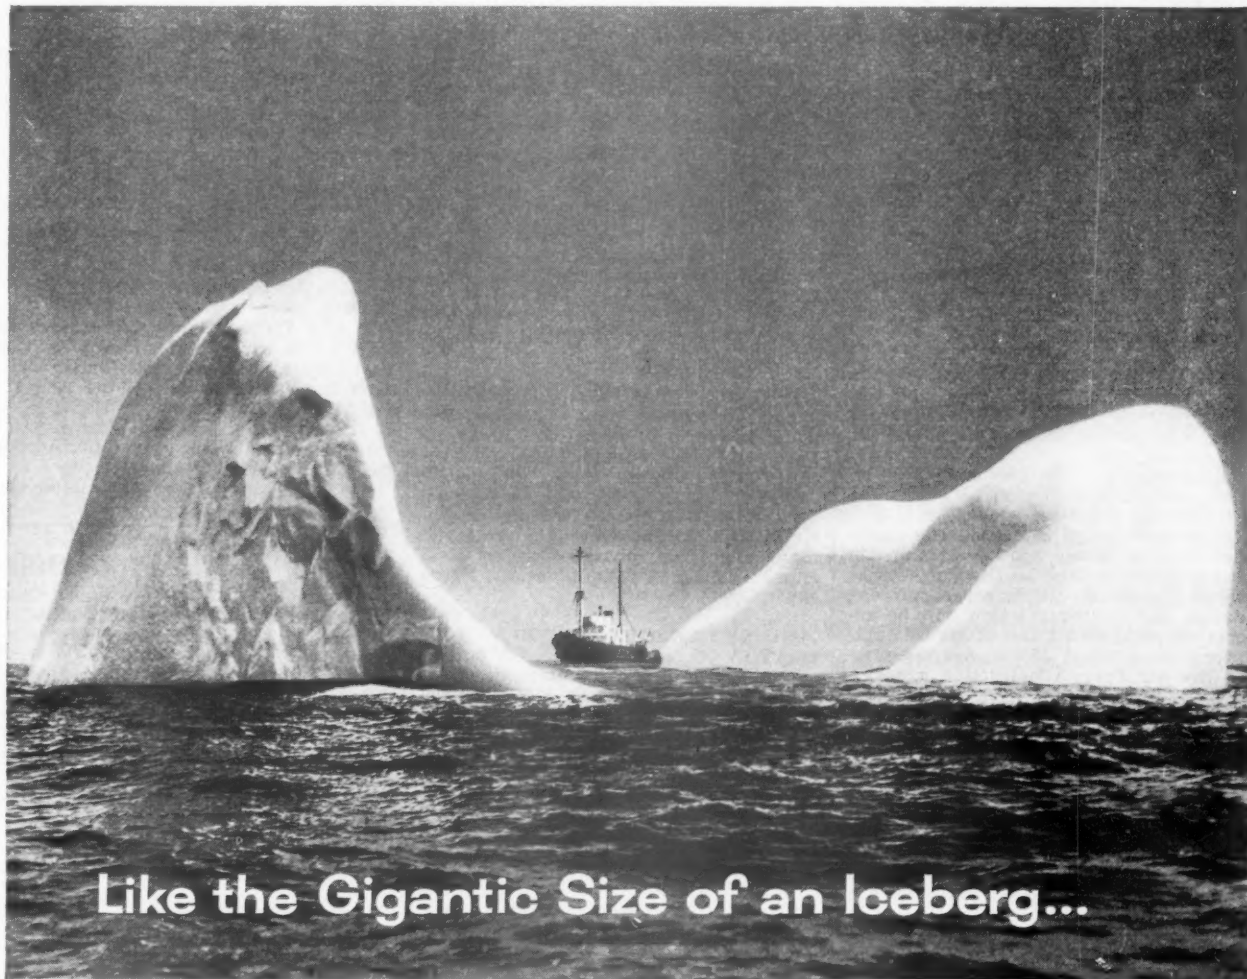

General Dynamics was selected to build the two Polaris missile-firing submarines in February. A third FBM is being constructed at the Mare Island Naval Shipyard, Calif.

It is expected that Electric Boat will start work on the second FBM, the 599, this month. Both are scheduled for delivery in 1960.

The FBM's will be equipped to fire the Polaris 1,500 mile solid-fuel missile from submerged positions.

These subs will be among the heaviest ever built by the Navy displacing some 6,000 tons. They will have whale-shaped hulls similar to the Skipjack, will be 380 feet long and have a beam of 33 feet.

General Dynamics, builder of the Navy's first three A Subs, USS Nautilus, USS Seawolf, and USS Skate, will launch its fourth nuclear submarine, the Skipjack, 26 May.

Like the Gigantic Size of an Iceberg...

there's more to Cities Service than meets the eye!

Mammoth as it may appear to the eye, an iceberg is normally eight times the size of its visible portion. Seven-eighths lies submerged and unseen beneath the surface.

Few spectacles of nature are so awesome as the iceberg. Hundreds of yards in length, it rises 100 feet or more above the sea, with crests or minarets spiring higher to 200 and even 300 feet.

Yet, only about one-eighth of an iceberg's mass rides in view. The great bulk lies hidden in the ocean depths.

Similarly unseen by most of the public they serve are the far-flung facilities of petroleum enterprise—towering derricks in the oil fields—mighty refineries—thousands of miles of pipeline—fleets of ocean-going tankers—wonderful modern laboratories.

Costly? Yes—the capital invested in the business of a major oil company such as Cities Service exceeds a billion dollars. Without these facilities and the skilled men and women who operate them, the American petroleum job could not be done... and petroleum, next to food, is America's most vital product today.

AMC Radio Dispatching May Save $10 Million

Use of two-way radios to dispatch materials handling equipment may save as much as $10 million annually for the Air Materiel Command.

First AMC installation to test the radio dispatching system for forklift, tugs, cranes and other equipment will be the Mobile, Ala., and Oklahoma City Air Materiel Areas. Tests will begin 1 July. If successful, the radio dispatching system may be extended to all major AMC installations.

SAVING WORDS

for officers of the Reserve Corps and the National Guard now on active duty

Under the planned reduction of the U. S. Armed Forces, many Reserve Corps and National Guard officers and warrant officers will soon be released from active duty.

Officers of the Reserve Corps and National Guard who retain their commissions or warrants after separation may continue their insurance with USAA provided they were insured with USAA while on active duty. If membership is not acquired before separation from the service, they are not eligible for USAA's money-saving insurance.

USAA provides insurance to a preferred risk group at the lowest possible cost because it operates as a non-profit association with all funds pooled for mutual protection and service. No agents are employed and selling is done by mail. The savings made by USAA each year are returned in liberal dividends to the association's members.

If you expect to be released from active duty soon and plan to retain your commission or warrant, insure with USAA now while on active duty so that you may enjoy the liberal savings that this dependable insurance offers.

Service Academy Superintendents Meet

In all the current talk about inter-Service rivalry, the Nation frequently is not advised adequately about the great measure of inter-Service cooperation at all echelons, such as marked last week's meeting at New London, Conn., of the four Academy Superintendents. Assembling at the U. S. Coast Guard Academy, as the guests of RAdm. Frank A. Leamy, USCG, the Superintendents and their staffs wasted no time in getting down to specifics. (Page 3).

Their words of caution concerning the danger of diluting basic education programs at the Academies in favor of ambitious joint training ventures should be heeded carefully. Also, at a time when there is some support on Capitol Hill for extending obligated tours of Academy graduates up to a period of 10 years, the counsel of the Superintendents merits close study. They point out that proper motivation does not come from such required service.

Another important problem discussed at the New London sessions concerned the matter of appointments to the Academies. We believe there is strong merit in the recommendation that Members of Congress appoint 10 candidates for each vacancy. Furthermore, although the Superintendents did not state such a conclusion, we are certain that the motivation factor would be greatly enhanced if Congress gave the President authority to name more men from the Services and more Sons of the Services to the Academies.

All in all, the meeting of the Superintendents was an auspicious occasion. We can look forward hopefully to the 1959 conference at West Point.

Good Neighbor Policy In The Armed Services

Before World War II, when the Armed Forces were smaller and more self-contained they were also more insular and isolated from the life of the communities around them. As they have grown in size and complexity new problems have arisen. The increased size and activities of the Services encroach on the life of the neighboring civilians. Military traffic flows over the nearby roads, service families use the local facilities, the stores and the churches and their children attend the community schools. And, most aggravating of all, Army trucks and tanks sprawl over the fields and roads and Air Force planes roar over homes at unexpected hours.

It is a tribute to the adaptiveness of the Services that they have met these new and growing problems with planned programs which, by and large, have been remarkably successful. Take, for example, the Air Force's problem of operating jet aircraft with their roaring, screeching noises. When such planes first came into operation, the reaction of the communities was almost catastrophic. Resentment and anger seriously hampered the defense program—in fact, in some instances military flying was drastically curtailed as the result of protests.

But the ability of the Services to adapt themselves to new conditions and solve their problems through planned programs has been well demonstrated in these conditions. An example of this effort, which has been repeated many times throughout the Nation, is the program conducted by officials at Andrews AFB, in southern Maryland nearby to Washington, D. C., when they recently converted to Convair F-102A's for their 95th Fighter Interceptor Squadron. The Delta Dagger is a highly efficient all-weather interceptor, but no one can deny that when one of these supersonic fighters takes off and climbs with its afterburner it is a screaming, roaring behemoth.

Looking forward to this transition, Col. William T. Smith, Base Commander, set up a planned program. Some 40 leaders of the nearby communities, mayors, councilmen, presidents of civic clubs, etc., were taken to Ent AFB, Colo., and shown how the Air Defense Command works and its importance to our national security. Next, they were guests at the Convair factory in San Diego where Convair and Hughes Aircraft, manufacturer of the Falcon missile which arms the F-102, indoctrinated the citizens into the problems and accomplishments of designing and producing these weapons. Later, Colonel Smith invited the civic leaders and their wives back to Andrews to meet Lt. Col. Joel D. Thorvaldson, Commander of the 95th, and his officers, and to see the new F-102s going into service for their defense.

The reaction has been impressive. The towns and cities in the Andrews area now feel a close kinship to their neighbors in the Air Defense Command and they understand that those horrendous noises they sometimes hear are for their own defense. This procedure has been repeated wherever Convair F-102s have gone into operation. Col. Barney Oldfield, Information Services Officer for NORAD and the Air Defense Command, who has fathered this particular phase of the Community Relations Program, says that as supersonic jets have increased in numbers the complaints have fallen off. This can be attributed only to the planned programs of community relations—just being good neighbors.

Let's Have Free Expression Of Military Views

It is vitally important to the future of the Nation's defense establishment that personnel of all the Services feel completely free to give their full and complete views to the Congressional Committees considering the reorganization of the Department of Defense. Secretary of Defense Neil H. McElroy, in his first official statement on the subject, gave assurance that officers appearing before Congressional Committees would be free to answer "fully and frankly," but he added what might well be construed as a restraint, that is that such officers must give consideration to their positions as members of the "defense organization which is commanded by the President." This was a strong implication that loyalty to the Administration should temper their views. This week before the House Armed Services Committee he omitted this qualification. We hope this is an indication that witnesses will have complete liberty in giving the Congressmen and the public their professional advice on the type of organization that will be the most effective.

READERS' VIEWS

In four years I will reach 20 years of service and I am going to run like a scalded dog. I am one of those unfortunate Competitive Tour officers that has lost all hope of promotion in the foreseeable future. Only in the Army can you find company grade officers with over 15 years of continuous active service.

We were neither fish nor fowl in 1950 when temporary promotions were made, and now the metamorphosis is completed again because officers being currently integrated are being given credit for commission service denied to us. I am able to do a conscientious job only because I believe in the biblical parable about the denarius a day.

IN THE JOURNAL

10 Years Ago—Italian Communists, and more importantly, Moscow itself, received a sharp check this week when the critical elections brought to the polls the enormous turn-out of 94 per cent of the eligibles, and amassed for the Christian Democrats a plurality of almost 50 per cent. It is important to note, however, that this is only a very small reduction of the Reds' previous ratio.

90 Years Ago—The House of Representatives has passed a bill to amend certain acts in relation to the Navy and Marine Corps. This bill limits the number of officers, non-commissioned officers, and musicians of the Marine Corps to the number authorized by the act of March 2, 1867, and of privates to 1,500, now 3,000.

We are pleased with the article in the 29 March 1958 JOURNAL on the First Annual Miniaturization Award to the Diamond Ordnance Fuze Laboratories.

There is one misstatement regarding proximity fuze credits which this installation regrets. While much of the original development of the proximity fuze was performed under Army auspices, the facts are that proximity fuzes were first used in World War II by the Navy and were developed under Navy auspices.

I hope that this has not caused you any inconvenience.

JOHN A. ULRICH
LT. COL., ORD. CORPS
COMMANDING, DIAMOND FUZE LABORATORIES

In view of the numerous DA comments regarding promotion to the "best qualified" it was truly amazing to note the complete about-face when it came down to actually implementing these treasured phrases. I speak of the large group of Majors recently promoted who all had the same date of rank, i.e., the USMA Class of '45 and others with commensurate rank. It would've been less "sticky" if all these people with the same date of rank could've been promoted on the same date. Allocations no doubt prevented the promotion of such a large group on the same date and this is understandable. Consequently, they were broken into three increments and promoted over a spread of several weeks.

The irritating and unfair part of the promotion of these officers was that they were promoted according to their West Point class standing in 1945. Why weren't they split according to their military merit over the past 12 years? It was unforgivable that they were promoted on the basis of how well they "slipped" a slide rule as school boys 22 years prior rather than how well they've produced and compared with each other as officers in the Army. If this OEI business means anything, then let's use it as a yardstick when separating large groups with the same dates of rank. DA had a marvelous opportunity to reward those who have functioned more efficiently than others but they sadly muffed it.

Defense Reorganization Hearings Open At Capitol; SecDef Interrogated

STRONG WORDS FROM CHIEF EXECUTIVE

President Eisenhower at a news conference 23 April lashed out at reporters questioning his Defense Reorganization Plan.

He said the plan weakens neither the Services nor their respective Chiefs.

The Chief Executive declared: "It might be just as well sensible for you to say that Congress is suddenly going nuts and completely abolishing the Defense Department."

The President added that improper use of the centralized power contained in the reorganization program "is just not possible if we are sensible people."

The Chairman said his Committee will "make the record crystal clear as to the intent behind each suggestion that has been or will be made with regard to the organization of the Department of Defense."

SecDef. McElroy Leads Off

Secretary McElroy, in his lead-off statement, told the Committee "most of the concerns that have been expressed about the President's proposals will disappear" as the various features of the proposal are studied in detail.

He said "the heart and soul" of the plan is its emphasis on the unified command and the "continuing refinement" of that concept.

The Secretary declared that the direction of the unified commands "in the stepped-up tempo of modern warfare" must go from commander-in-chief to the unified commanders "in as direct and clear a line as possible." He noted that under the President's plan, the military departments, the Service Secretaries and the individual Service Chiefs "will no longer be interposed between the Secretary of Defense and the unified commanders." He said "The command line will be made straight and clear."

Mr. McElroy said that to execute his responsibilities in this field, the Secretary of Defense will require the best military advice he can obtain. Thus, the reorganization proposes that the Chiefs of Staff devote more time to strategic planning, and that their professional staff be strengthened, he said.

No Merger Contemplated

The plan "does not contemplate" merger of the Armed Forces, he said, any more than the numerous unified commands now in existence "have tended to merge or destroy" the Services.

He told the Committee, the President's proposal to do away with separate administration of the military departments is designed to reduce "needless argument and misunderstanding which adds to the difficulty of administering the Department."

Commenting on the "misgivings" which have been expressed that the new proposal seeks to put the entire defense appropriation in the hands of the Secretary of Defense "for him to dispose of as he sees fit," he said "No such change is sought or wanted. The objective is simply to provide the Secretary of Defense with modest flexibility in the handling of defense funds so that unanticipated needs of the unified commands can be met properly—and scientific breakthroughs can be exploited rapidly."

This is not covered in the proposed legislation. Mr. McElroy said "it is expected to be worked out in connection with the fiscal year 1960 and subsequent appropriation acts." When the time comes, he said, the Pentagon believes it can "reach agreement with Congress and its appropriate committees on a method whereby this can be accomplished."

Questions "Gag" Statement

Chairman Vinson opened the questioning under rules which restrict each member of the Committee to 15 minutes at a time. All of his questions were directed at Secretary McElroy's recent National Press Club statement that there would be "no excuse" for officers and officials making public speeches against the President's plan, although they would be free to give their views fully and frankly to Congressional committees, if asked.

Secretary McElroy also told the Press Club "I would think that if a man of integrity and conscience felt so strongly opposed to the basic policies and programs of his organization that he could not effectively discharge his responsibilities, he would so advise his superiors." This was widely interpreted as a strong hint that members of the military establishment should resign if their views were in too sharp conflict with those of the commander-in-chief.

Mr. Vinson asked if it was safe to assume that Mr. McElroy made the statement because he knew that many officers and officials in the Defense Department would disagree with the President's recommendations.

Secretary McElroy said the only reason for the statement was that his public relations advisers had informed him that the question would be asked and that he should have an answer ready. He readily admitted, however, "Frankly, I am sure there are varying degrees of enthusiasm for this proposal in the Defense Department."

In response to other questions on the same subject, Secretary McElroy said no one would be penalized for opposing the plan before Congressional committees, nor would he expect such individuals to submit their resignations. He said the only attitude that will count will be the one the individual adopts after the reorganization plan becomes law.

He denied that such officers would be classified as "obstructionists" or that they would be held back from top command on the basis of their Congressional testimony.

Funds Authority Would Be Limited

Representative Overton Brooks (D-La.) delved into the proposed transfer of funds authority to the Secretary of Defense.

Secretary McElroy said plans will have to be worked out with the appropriations committees, but the Department currently is thinking about an amount which would be less than 10 per cent, "maybe five per cent," of the entire Defense budget.

The added funds authority would give the SecDef. increased flexibility, he said, to deal with emergencies and to exploit breakthroughs in the development of new weapons systems.

Congressman Brooks asked if Secretary McElroy advocates "unification" of the Armed Forces.

The Defense Secretary said no such step is intended or desired. He said the separate Services constitute "one of the key morale factors" in the overall Defense organization at the present time.

He also said it is not the intention of the President's proposal to set up a single chief of staff or a supreme general staff. "It is our belief that the Joint Chiefs of Staff is the form in which the joint chiefs operation should continue to function."

Services Have Side-stepped Common Objectives

Representative Leslie J. Arends (R-Ill.) questioned Secretary McElroy about the President's expressed desire to remove "all doubts" about the Secretary of Defense's authority. He asked what some of the "doubts" are.

Secretary McElroy said the basic doubt is the language in the present law which gives him full authority over the military departments but permits the individual Service Secretaries to administer their departments "separately." He said the confusion raised by this language "has been used as an excuse not fully to proceed toward common objectives."

Former Assistant Secretary of Defense Charles A. Coolidge, who served as one of the consultants in the development of the reorganization plan, said the "separately administered" wording was just "sand in the gear box." Other obstacles, he said, are the Secretary's lack of authority to transfer, reassign and abolish functions in the Armed Forces, to assign missions to the unified commands, and to conduct and operate R&D programs under the Armed Forces procurement act.

Congressman Arends said previous testimony before the Armed Services Committee has indicated the Assistant Secretaries of Defense create some of the bottlenecks in the Defense Department organization. He said it is difficult for these officials to do a good job since most of them serve only about 16 months.

Secretary McElroy said this problem was thoroughly examined and the Pentagon is prepared to ask each Assistant Secretary to come up and explain what his duties are and how they are fulfilled.

Chairman Vinson said all of the As-

THE STRONGLY WORDED CONTROVERSY between President Eisenhower and Chairman Vinson of the House Armed Services Committee over Defense Reorganization could have ramifications on the military pay front. Mr. Vinson took a leading role in securing House passage of a pay bill substantially costlier than proposed by the Administration. The fact that there were only 22 dissenting votes in the House may prompt Chairman Vinson to make this another issue of control over the Services should the Senate, at the strong urging of the White House, cut the increases by substantial amounts.

INTERNAL INFORMATION PROGRAMS in all the Services, aimed at keeping military families informed, will suffer if PubInfo staffs are slashed and centralized under DoD. During the past several years, there's been increased emphasis on getting the word to the troops.

MAY MARKS A YEAR since the Pentagon first announced plans for enlisted proficiency pay. Less than $50,000,000 is involved--about half a day's cost for the Armed Forces.

THERE'S BEEN MUCH TALK about the possibility of SAC gaining operational control of some Naval weapons, for example the Polaris submarines, in unified strategic warfare planning. Less has been said about the prospect that some commands headed by Naval officers, say the Pacific Command under Admiral Stump, will take from SAC the control of some bombers, such as the B-47 units deployed to Guam.

THE RISE OF ARMY AVIATION has prompted Pentagon planners to take a new look at officer training programs. Consideration is being given to a target of providing 25% of combat arms officers with training as fixed or rotary wing pilots.

NAVY, AIR FORCE AND MARINE RECRUITERS can't be enthused over a new Army poster that is receiving wide circulation. It has a fiery representation of the Explorer rocket with the words: "Pioneers in Space, U. S. Army Missilemen." The Army is conducting an energetic recruiting program to sign up young men for initial missile assignments nearby their homes.

THE ARMY AIR DEFENSE COMMAND, under Lt. Gen. Charles E. Hart, is abandoning the 48-year-old "antiaircraft artillery" designation of its brigades and groups. Henceforth, they will be known as Army Air Defense Artillery units. The Pentagon is studying a proposal to extend the modernized designations to non-divisional Army air defense battalions; pending a decision, the battalions will bear the "AAA" classification. An example of the new titles: the 47th Antiaircraft Artillery Brigade becomes the 47th Air Defense Artillery Brigade.

SUPPORT FOR SERVICE PAY came voluntarily from the 150 civic and community leaders who visited Andrews AFB 19 April to attend an open house ceremony marking the transition of the 95th FIS to Convair F-102's. Impressed by the complexity of this supersonic equipment and its armament, the visitors agreed that higher pay is needed to attract and keep the skilled personnel necessary to keep it operational.

AN ADVANCED NUCLEAR REACTOR is being perfected by the Navy to power the new radar picket submarine, Triton. It will have removable individual fuel elements which the Navy may be able to replace from a tender, so the A-sub won't have to return to a Navy yard for that purpose. The Triton, which will be able to maneuver at higher speed than present Navy submarines, will be equipped with two such reactors to assure greater reliability.

KEY WHITE HOUSE MAN in the drafting of the President's Defense Reorganization Plan was Bryce Harlow, who is in a strategic position to discuss differing viewpoints with House Armed Services Committee members. During the sweeping Defense investigation in 1948-49, which was fomented by the B-36-Supercarrier controversy, Mr. Harlow was Chief Clerk of the House Committee, a right-hand aide to Chairman Vinson (D-Ga.). The Committee's report on "Unification and Strategy," written by Mr. Harlow, has been hailed as one of the most effective documents on Defense organization in recent history. He is now a Presidential Assistant.

SAC CREWS ARE SCORING marked gains in safety. Latest reports from Offutt AFB, Nebr., Headquarters show that the 1956 B-52 rate of 28.9 was slashed to 6.9 last year. SAC's overall accident rate was from 7.8 to 5.1--lowest in its history.

IF THE MARINES still want the UNIMOG all-purpose combat vehicle, its German manufacturers, the Mercedes-Benz Company, will bend over backwards to provide it. To get around provisions of the Buy America Act, the company has made it known it would like an American company to ask for a license to build it. The UNIMOG can carry up to 30 times its own weight, and can be fitted with a turret for anti-tank operations.

THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA COMMISSIONERS have been told that the departure in July of Lt. Col. Robert E. Mathe, Assistant Engineer Commissioner, will take away from the Capital a driving force in the campaign for urban renewal. This praise came from the Washington Housing Association. It was noted that the annual cost of his pay and allowances is about $8,500--just about half the cost of a qualified civilian holding a similar post.

THE SERVICES ARE PLEASED with the upward trend in applications for career service from physicians and dentists. The new pay bill is expected to provide significant new incentives. One reason for the satisfaction is the sharp increase in medical officers who have completed successfully specialty board examinations. The Army last year saw 103 physicians and surgeons and 7 dentists certified--compared with a total of only 140 in the entire Army 10 years ago.

THE ENLISTED SPECIALISTS' CLUB at the Army Chemical Center, Md., is sponsoring a drive to raise money for a scholarship to send a youngster from Harford County to college. There are about 700 soldiers at the Chemical Center who are under the Army's Enlisted Scientific and Professional Personnel Program.

SKYCAV UNITS still are under development in the Army. It had been reported that Aerial Combat Reconnaissance Units were replacing the controversial SKYCAV outfits. Army officials relate that their failure to mention SKYCAV in recent statements is an oversight. SKYCAV outfits will emphasize acquisition of information by infiltration of enemy areas with aerial and ground detection devices. ACRU's will be fashioned around the use of armed helicopters in ground reconnaissance missions.

THERE'S A DOLLAR DISCREPANCY in what the Government charges for two sister publications. The Navy's monthly "All Hands", which has 68 pages in its April issue, is available from the Government Printing Office for $2.50 per year for domestic and FPO and APO addresses. The cost for the Air Force's monthly "Airmen" is $3.50. It has 52 pages in a combined March-April issue.

General Lincoln To D. C. From Duty In Italy

Brig. Gen. L. J. Lincoln, Mediterranean Division Engineer, Leghorn, Italy, will be shifted to Washington, D. C., effective 14 July.

He will leave Italy a month earlier, and will go to Morocco where he will see his daughter wed, before returning to the States and his new assignment.

He will be assigned to the Deputy Chief of Staff for Logistics. He became Division Engineer of the Mediterranean Engineer Division 1 May 1956, when the Division was in Nouasseur, Morocco, and moved the Division Office in November 1957 to its present location in Italy.

The Mediterranean Engineer Division is one of the largest in the world geographically speaking, covering an area about one-and-one-half times as large as the whole United States. It includes Italy, Turkey, Greece, Iran, Pakistan, Morocco, Libya and Eritrea. In certain of these countries the Division, which is divided into five Districts, is building American installations, and in others it is doing construction for the Armed Forces of those countries, through use of mutual aid funds.

Brussels' World Fair Will Attract Units From All Armed Services

STRONG Armed Forces' participation in the Brussels World's Fair, which began this week, has been planned by the Department of Defense.

Leading off the list of military organizations to be featured as part of the U. S. contribution is the Seventh Army Symphony Orchestra under Maj. Thoms Giboney, USA.

Other organizations scheduled for appearances at the fair include: the Air Force Orchestra, Europe; Air Force Drum and Bugle Corps under the direction of CWO Louis C. Kriebel; Airmen of Note, under M/Sgt. John J. Osiecki; the NavCad Choir from Pensacola, Fla.; and the Steel Band from the Antilles Command.

There is a strong possibility, Defense Department spokesmen said, that the Marine Corps Band may be sent to the fair. There may also be some U. S. Naval Academy participation in connection with the USNA summer cruises.

Additional Army and Air Force music units and arts and crafts presentations will also be presented at the fair.

Military Appeals Court
Clarifies Law Officer Job
The U. S. Court of Military Appeals, in the U. S. v Turner, has clarified the functions of a law officer at a General Court Martial.
It held that the law officer and the president of a special court martial "must advise the members in open court on the maximum permissible limits of punishment prior to deliberation on the sentence."
The court noted that "prejudicial error occurs when the law officer appears in closed session and refers the court martial to outside legal sources affecting the sentence without affording the accused and his counsel the opportunity to object or request clarification of such matters."

Navy Will Dip To June '59 Fleet Strength Of 864 Ships; 48 Inactivations Scheduled

The Navy, which had a strength of 901 ships this fiscal year, will drop to 864 by 30 June 1959, with inactivations scheduled for four carriers, Boxer, Philippine Sea, Leyte and Princeton, four cruisers, 11 submarines and one destroyer.

A Pentagon announcement 14 April said these inactivations "are being made in order to make way for 31 new and converted ships."

Three of the four aircraft carriers are employed in anti-submarine duty and the fourth, Boxer, is employed in support of Operation Hardtack, the forthcoming AEC-DOD tests at the Pacific Proving Ground.

These carriers were all originally commissioned in 1945 and 1946, and have seen continuous duty since that time. The three anti-submarine carriers will be replaced in that type of duty by three attack type carriers which will be reclassified.

One new Forrestal class carrier, Independence, and one converted Essex class carrier, Oriskany, will be commissioned early next year.

The four cruisers to be inactivated are the heavy cruisers Salem, soon to return from two years duty as the flagship of the Sixth Fleet, and Columbus, and the light cruisers Worcester and Roanoke. Two guided missile cruisers—Little Rock and Oklahoma City—are scheduled to join the fleet during fiscal 1959, with the Galveston joining the fleet this fiscal year.

In addition to the aircraft carriers and cruisers, other new ships scheduled to join the fleet during the year are six destroyers, four conventional-powered submarines, four nuclear-powered submarines, four destroyer escorts, one attack transport, two tank landing ships, four mine sweepers and two ammunition ships.

Besides the 48 ships being decommissioned, 14 destroyer and destroyer escort type vessels will be transferred from the active to the reserve training fleet; one fleet minesweeper will be assigned to the Navy's operational development force, two rescue escorts will be assigned to the U. S. Underwater Sound Laboratory, and one rescue escort will be assigned to the Naval Research Laboratory.

Marine Corps Plans Chief Tells Meeting Of "Certain Magic" In New Doctrine

The Marine Corps reorganization of tactical units and the vertical envelopment doctrine represent "no magic formula," but Maj. Gen. Carson Roberts has declared "there is a certain magic in the organization and philosophy of the Marines—a magic which tailors the new doctrine to our precise requirements."

He made this statement in addressing the Sea Power Symposium of the Navy League on 11 April.

"We have integrated our air and ground components into a single weapon concept," said General Roberts, "thus achieving maximum modern combat effectiveness."

Deputy Chief of Staff for Plans at Marine Corps Headquarters, the General noted:

"Each of our pilots is trained in infantry tactics. Each knows the problems and potential of the ground troops. Our ground forces continually train and maneuver with our air support. Each is thoroughly familiar with the other's capabilities, and each has developed techniques of better coordination to accomplish each mission more effectively."

General Roberts added:

"We believe our new doctrine has produced the most versatile, most powerful amphibious assault force ever conceived."

Widows And Daughters' Residence Sought By Army Wives; Symphony Success Is Told

A permanent residence for Army widows and daughters in the Nation's Capital is being considered by the Army Wives' Council.

Spurred by Mrs. Maxwell D. Taylor, the Council has made preliminary cost and need studies for the residence. To date, Council members have interviewed businessmen, builders, Army families and organizations to gather information for the project.

The results of their inquiries were reported 23 April at the AWC meeting in Patton Hall, Ft. Myer, Va. Further studies will be made.

Mrs. Taylor emphasized that the Council's present investigations are only "the first step." Whether the project will get off the ground, she said, is not known.

Symphony Project Success

Tremendous success was reported in the project to support the National Symphony Orchestra through the sale of season tickets. The wives almost doubled their goal, selling 1,500 single tickets to concert performances.

The Symphony has adopted the AWC subscription method for all Armed Forces organizations in the area.

The Council is an informal organization of representatives from each of the Army wives organizations in the Washington Area. By coordinating their activities, they hope to carry out projects

Presented a glass jewel case by the Ft. McPherson, Ga., Woman's Club on the eve of the retirement of her husband, Lt. Gen. Thomas F. Hickey, Third Army Commander. Mrs. Hickey told the members:

"We've been in the Army almost 43 years, and, if I've learned one thing, it is that the husband-wife team produces the best results for yourself, your husbands, and the Army."

When it was pointed out to Mrs. Hickey that she hadn't been married quite 42 years, she remarked: "Perhaps I'd been looking for Tom Hickey even before we met; anyhow it's a feminine prerogative to claim total service as a member of the husband-wife team."

"We are all 'camp followers' in the Army," she said, "and it is up to each of us to enter in to the life of the community wherever we may be. The various committee chairwomen cannot do all the work. Each of you must do her share."

Mrs. Hale

men's "Home away from home" a most apt one. A Kentucky-born Army junior, who married, then, 2d lieutenant airman husband in 1941, she and General Hale now have a Navy son, Ens. Dudley Hale, jr. Her many talents include interior decoration, flower growing and arranging, cooking, and a long-time interest and participation in civic and welfare work. NAVY REVERSES OFFICER RAINCOAT BAN

The Navy has reversed its decision to eliminate the winter raincoat from the officer wardrobe.

The blue raincoat has been an optional item for some time. About two years ago, however, the Navy's Permanent Uniform Board decreed that all officer and CPO raincoats could not be worn after 1 July 1960.

A story telling of strong objections to the proposed loss of the lightweight coat appeared in THE JOURNAL 15 March.

The Uniform Board also has established two new enlisted insignia. The new general service rating of Photographic Intelligence Man will have a specialty mark consisting of a stereoscope along with a graphic solution of a photographic problem. Photographic intelligence men interpret aerial photographs.

A new exclusive emergency service rating of Telecomm Censorship Technician will have a specialty mark made up of the block letter "K" enclosed in a diamond. This mark will be used exclusively by inactive duty reservists.

The following enlisted distinguishing marks are to be discontinued: Aviation Utility, Bomb Site Mechanic, Master Horizontal Bomber, Ordnance Battalion, and Seaman Gunner.

LCdr. Watkins Sets World Altitude Record, Says He Hopes To Top 80,000 Feet

NAAS EL CENTRO, CALIF.

If high-flying LCdr. George C. Watkins has his way, the world altitude mark for conventional aircraft, which he set 17 April, soon will be broken.

Meeting with newsmen here, Commander Watkins, Assistant Head, Carrier Branch, Flight Test Division, NATC, Patuxent River, Md., said he hoped to break the new 76,828.5 mark.

In accomplishing this feat in a Grumman F11F Super Tiger jet powered by a General Electric J79 engine, Commander Watkins took back from Great Britain an altitude record of 70,308 feet set 27 August 1957 by Michael Randrup.

Prior to that, the U. S. Navy held the record with a flight of the late VADM. Apollo Soucek 26 years ago to the 43,166 foot mark.

Flies From AF Base

Commander Watkins made his record flight out of Edwards AFB in California's Mojave Desert.

Responding to the query of a JOURNAL reporter, here to cover the Naval Air Weapons Meet, Commander Watkins said he expects to exceed 80,000 feet in a future flight. He explained that temperature conditions on the day he set the mark "were not the best." At the time he made the flight, the high altitude temperature was 12 degrees below standard.

VADM. William V. Davis, Jr., Deputy CNO for Air, said the flight was "made in the interest of engine development." He presented Commander Watkins with a DFC. The citation was flown to El Centro by RADM. Thurston B. Clark, Patuxent River Test Center Commander. He described Commander Watkins as "one of our better test pilots at Patuxent."

Commander Watkins said he hit his afterburner at an altitude of about 40,000 feet and attained a speed of approximately Mach 2. He said it was essential that a precise, predetermined, climb angle be maintained. When the afterburner cut off at about 65,000 feet, the plane was climbing at an altitude from 45 to 50 degrees at a speed of 5,000 feet per minute. As the plane reached the top of the "zoom," the air speed slowed to about 100 miles an hour, just below stall speed.

Four Seconds At Top

The Commander said he was at top altitude for about four seconds. The plane, he said, at the top of the climb was in about .2 of a gravity.

The plane's engine was in operation throughout the flight. The Commander returned to the Mojave strip with only 100 pounds of fuel remaining.

The record-breaking flight was one of a series flown by Commander Watkins and Grumman test pilot John Norris as part of "Operation Apollo," the name given to the test flights in memory of Admiral Soucek, who set three world's records in 1929 and 1930.

The mark will remain unofficial until the National Aeronautic Association has confirmed the readings on the flight instruments. When confirmed, the mark will be submitted to the Federation Aeronautique Internationale, Paris, France, for approval.

NAA representatives Carl Wheeley, Charles B. Kepner and Dr. Daniel P. Johnson were at Edwards to officiate during the flight.

Big Climber Is Small

The Super Tiger is one of the smallest high performance fighters built. Wingspan is slightly more than 37½ feet, and overall length measures under 50 feet. General Electric's J-79 engine gives the airplane a basic thrust of approximately 9,000 pounds (without after-burner).

Designed as a carrier-based fighter, the Super Tiger has excellent short-field and short-approach capabilities, in addition to being a high-altitude and high-speed performer.

transferred last August and renamed the Poseidon.

TWO HUNDRED NROTC will participate in a two-month cruise aboard the aircraft carrier USS RANGER, beginning 20 June from Norfolk. Newest carrier in the Navy, the Ranger will visit South American ports enroute to Alameda, Calif., where it will arrive 18 August.

Capt. Hiatt Wins "Top Gun Of 1958"

air-to-ground phase of the Meet were won by LCdr. Harlan R. Cheuvront, of VA-106, based at Cecil Field. The "Gladiator" pilot tallied 1752 points.

Fourth slot went to LCdr. Gaylen L. Wilkes of NAS Miramar-based VA-126. Squadron Executive Officer, he chalked-up 1716. In fifth position was "Thunderbolt" pilot Lt. (jg) Charles W. D. Ward who posted 1657. He was followed by Cdr. Charles S. Brookes, Commanding Officer of VA-145's "Swordsmen." Commander Brookes, flying an AD "Skyraider," scored 1652. The "Swordsmen" are based at NAS Miramar.

Bombs To Victory

VA-126, led by Cdr. "D" J. Birdsong, overcoming an early deficit—at one point they were in fourth place—bombed their way to number one team position with their accuracy in the over-the-shoulder loft and medium-angle loft events which were conducted on the final day of Light Attack competition.

Commander Birdsong's Squadron rallied with 1245 points in the over-the-shoulder loft and 1541 points in the medium-angle loft event to bring their total score to 6318 and wrap up the air-to-ground crown.

In second place—only 72 points back of Commander Birdsong's come-from-behind team—was VA-106 which tallied 6242 in the eight events. The Cecil Field-based "Gladiators" are headed by Cdr. Oyd L. Dauphin.

Led by Cdr. Donald C. Stanley, the "Thunderbolts" of NAS Cecil Field took third place honors. The VA-176 team piled up 5610 points.

Marine Attack Squadron 311, operating out of MCAS El Toro, posted 5433 points to win fourth position. The "Cougar" Squadron is commanded by Lt. Col. Robert E. Smith, Jr.

NAS Miramar's VA-145 finished fifth with a 5204 score.

Best In Heavy Attack

The Navy's top Heavy Attack Squadron is VA(H)-5 from NAS Jacksonville, Fla. Representing the Atlantic Fleet, VA(H)-5 bested the Pacific Fleet entry VA(H)-8, based at NAS Whidbey Island, Wash. The "Savage Sons" of Jacksonville are led by Cdr. J. M. Tully, Jr., while the Whidbey Islanders are led by Cdr. Le Roy B. Fraser.

VA(H)-5 outpointed VA(H)-8 by 8072.8 to 7893.2.

Both Squadrons fly swept-wing A3D "Skywarrior" twin-jet attack bombers. There are four teams in each organization.

The crews were required to locate their target and drop their bombs without benefit of visual ground contact. The flights were made from NAS North Island, San Diego.

Squadron teams were required to find their way to the target by Celestial Navigation and lay their eggs using the RBS (radar-bombing-system). Each of the eight planes carried an observer who scored the effectiveness of the missions. In order to minimize the possibility of errors on the part of the judges and observers, Meet officials scored the planes' crews on a best three out of six basis.

High individual crew honors went to LCdr. Charles O. Donnaud, 3d, Plane Commander, his Bombardier-Navigator ATC Thomas R. Walton and his Gunner-Navigator AM3 Raymond L. Blesener. The three-man crew piled up a score of 2284.2. Commander Donnaud's A3D flies with VA(H)-5.

LCdr. Longdon Crushes Rivals

The torrid pace set by LCdr. David M. Longdon singlehandedly smothered the opposition in the All-Weather Fighter segment of the Shoot.

Flying with VF(AW)-213, out of NAS Moffett Field, Calif., Commander Longdon amassed a score of 1255 points—more than twice the total turned in by the NAS Boca Chica, Fla., team, VF(AW)-102.

VF(AW)-213 turned in a score card of 1329 points while VF(AW)-102 posted 547.

Commander Longdon won the individual all-weather fighter crown with ease. Number two slot went to Lt. (jg) Alton A. Coward who fired a 307. He is attached to the VF(AW)-102 team.

VF(AW)-213 is led by LCdr. Edgar E. Salsig. 102's skipper is LCdr. I. A. Robinson.

Both squadrons fly Grumman F4D "Skyraids."

vigilance

Final victory over cancer will come from the research laboratory. But there are victories today. Many cancers can be cured when detected early and treated promptly. Vigilance is the key to this victory. There are seven signals which might mean cancer. Vigilance in heeding them could mean victory over cancer for you.

1. Unusual bleeding or discharge.
 2. A lump or thickening in the breast or elsewhere.
 3. A sore that does not heal.
 4. Change in bowel or bladder habits.
 5. Hoarseness or cough.
 6. Indigestion or difficulty in swallowing.
 7. Change in a wart or mole.
- If your signal lasts longer than two weeks, go to your doctor to learn if it means cancer.

Assistant Secretaries will be called as witnesses.

Secretary McElroy said the Defense Department is so huge that it requires a large number of officials to work out common policies in every area, and that, even if the Assistant Secretaries were eliminated, officials with other titles would have to be appointed to get the job done. Commenting on the short tenure in office of the Assistant Secretaries, he noted that continuity is maintained by a "back-up of military officers" in each of the offices.

Representative Kilday's questioning highlighted the opening session of the hearings. He drew an admission from Secretary McElroy that under the terms of the reorganization plan it would be possible to "deprive the Chief of Staff of the Army of everybody but his aide and his orderly," and even these two could be eliminated by administrative action.

Secretary McElroy said this was not the intention of the plan, and that it would mean both a President and Secretary of Defense would have to agree to such a move before it could be done, but, he agreed, it is possible. He added that, for that matter, it also is possible to place all support units under unified commands, although this is not the intention of the plan.

Congressman Kilday attacked the Secretary's statement that the new authority for the unified commands is the "heart and soul" of the reorganization plan. He said the President already has acted administratively to strengthen the Secretary's control over the unified commands and has similarly removed the military departments from unified command functions by discontinuing their executive agency command functions.

He said the real heart and soul of the plan is the proposal to take away from the Service Secretaries their authority to "separately administer" their services.

The high price of American military weapons will discourage the German Armed Forces from buying some needed equipment directly from this country.

In some areas, Lt. Col. E. M. Paulsen, West Germany Assistant Military Attache in Washington, told THE JOURNAL, it would be more economical for the German government if American producers would license their products for manufacture in Europe. The lower cost of European labor, he said, would considerably reduce the expenses of equipping the new German military force.

Japan, following a similar trend, soon will produce the Grumman F11F-1F Super Tiger supersonic jet interceptor in its own factories. The trend toward foreign manufacture, rather than purchase from the United States, was also noted at the recent NATO meeting in Paris. Delegates to the Western European Union attending the meeting said that they would like to expand arms production among the continental NATO countries and reduce the amount of imports required from the U. S.

Items which might prove desirable if they could be obtained at a lower price, German Embassy officials said, were some types of American helicopters, the Ontos anti-tank vehicle, and American fighter aircraft.

Test 'Copters

At the present time, Colonel Paulsen said, the German Army is experimenting with the Bell 47G2, the Vertol H-21, the Sikorsky S-58 and a number of British and French helicopters. Eventually, he said, they hope to decide upon one as a standard part of their Army equipment.

The Ontos, Colonel Paulsen thought, might be superior as an anti-tank vehicle to the German-made Unimog, which the U. S. Marines are considering as an all-purpose vehicle and anti-tank weapons platform. "The Ontos is also much more expensive," he added.

The Federal Republic of Germany cannot produce many of the heavier or more lethal instruments of warfare. By treaty, Germany is forbidden to produce atom bombs, guided missiles, bombers or large warships. There are, however, no effective restrictions on the types of weapons with which they can equip their military forces if they buy them from other countries.

The Federal Republic, Colonel Paulsen said, will purchase Matador guided missiles from the U. S., and will use them with their operational forces. If the U. S. would provide the atomic warheads for these missiles, he said, there would be no legal restrictions on Germany's acceptance.

Missile bases are slated for the United Kingdom and four other NATO countries. France, Italy, Turkey and the Netherlands have approved in principle the establishment of IRBM missile bases on their territory. Britain and France are seeking atomic weapons, including atomic depth charges for their fleets.

forces if they buy them from other countries.

The Federal Republic, Colonel Paulsen said, will purchase Matador guided missiles from the U. S., and will use them with their operational forces. If the U. S. would provide the atomic warheads for these missiles, he said, there would be no legal restrictions on Germany's acceptance.

WWII Machine Gun Praised

An especially good piece of equipment, the Colonel said, is the German MG 42, 7.92 mm, light machine gun. This WWII weapon, he said, is considered by the German Army to be superior to any similar weapons now operational with the U. S. Armed Forces. He added that the German Army did not yet have experience with the U. S. M60 machine gun which will soon be incorporated into the American arsenal.

Trials are now being conducted, the Colonel said, to determine the rifle which will become standard with the German Army. High on the list of contenders to become the German infantryman's "best friend" are the Spanish CETME automatic, an adaptation of a German WWII model, and the Belgian FN rifle. He said that eventually the European NATO countries hoped to adopt a standard rifle for use by all their armies.

Switching over to Naval matters, Colonel Paulsen noted that U. S. equipment has become the pride of the German fleet. He was referring to the destroyer USS Anthony, which, after being transferred to the Federal Republic, holds the distinction of being the largest German warship.

INDUSTRY IN DEFENSE

THE ADMIRAL SOUCEK TROPHY, shown here by Vice President C. J. Gallant of North American Aviation, was awarded to the Navy's best heavy attack team, led by Cdr. J. M. Tully, NAS Jacksonville, Fla., at the El Centro, Calif., Naval Air Weapons Meet.

New In Service—

ALUMINIZED SUITS for fire fighting have passed first tests conducted by the Army Engineer R&D Laboratories, Ft. Belvoir, Va., in northern California forests. Men wearing the suits were able to stand within two feet of a forest fire two to three minutes without discomfort, although the heat was so intense that exposed portions of helmet liners were blistered.

HELICOPTER ALTIMETERS, described as the first designed for military low-level operations, have been demonstrated at the Naval Air Station, Anacostia, Md. Designed by Sylvania Electric Products, Inc., for the Navy Bureau of Aeronautics, the altimeter will measure the terrain clearance of an aircraft from zero to 1,000 feet without using protruding external antennas.

AN AMBIVALENT TRUCK which can quickly convert from a personnel carrier to a three-quarter-ton truck has been developed by Willys Motors, Inc., Toledo, Ohio. The vehicle, five of whose seats fold flush into the platform bed, has a load capacity equal to its weight of 1,500 pounds. With adaptations the truck may be used as a weapons carrier, guided missile carrier, recoilless rifle mount, communications equipment carrier or ambulance.

Rep. Vinson Says Pentagon Money Chiefs Are Encroaching On Military Operations

Chairman Carl Vinson (D-Ga.) of the House Armed Services Committee has lashed out at Assistant Secretary of Defense (Comptroller) W. J. McNeil for carrying supervision of military funds to the "extreme."

Mr. Vinson said national defense has been "warped and distorted by fiscal considerations." He charged that budgetary and fiscal policies and practices have "to a surprising degree preempted military considerations."

The Chairman made the remarks during his floor attack on the President's proposed Defense Department shake-up (THE JOURNAL 19 April). He did not mention Mr. McNeil by name, but noted that the Vinson-Arends-Kilday bill for reorganizing the Pentagon would "prohibit the Comptroller of the Department of Defense from vetoing or altering military decisions or programs."

He said the measure will "at least" slow down the growth of the Comptroller's office.

Mr. Vinson told the House, "We cannot defend ourselves successfully with a sword in one hand and a cash register in the other. Money appropriated by the Congress for national defense must not be arbitrarily withheld. Fiscal advisers must not be permitted to control the military aspects of military programs. Fiscal administrators must not engage in the field of military operations by championing their judgment against that of the professional officers appointed for the purpose."

Numerous witnesses from each of the Services testified before Mr. Vinson's Committee earlier this year that the most difficult roadblocks which they encounter stem from decisions coming out of the Comptroller's office.

Mr. Vinson said "The Comptroller's function—the management of funds—is one that provides an excellent example of bureaucratic growth. I believe, as does every Member of this House, in the proper supervision of funds by the military or any other department of Government. But this can be carried to extreme, and that extreme was reached some time ago in the Comptroller functions within the Department of Defense."

Western Electric-Douglas People Aid ARADCOM

Two civilian technical representatives—both Army veterans—have joined the industrial advisory staff of the Army Air Defense Command to give technical assistance on the Nike guided missile system.

They are Mr. Walter V. Buch, Western Electric Company, prime contractor for the Nike, and Mr. William S. Booth, Douglas Aircraft Company, principal subcontractor.

Western Electric builds the radar-electronics and ground guidance equipment of the Nike system and Douglas Aircraft, the missiles and associated launching equipment.

Both of the new technical representatives are assigned to the Ordnance office, USARADCOM, with duty stations at Red Canyon Range Camp, N. M., to work with the USARADCOM Scoring and Analysis Branch. The branch evaluates results of annual practice firing of Nike missiles by the command's units from defense sites throughout the nation.

Each Nike battalion of USARADCOM takes its turn at the Red Canyon missile firing range each year to prove continued proficiency by firing Nike missiles against "live" targets.

CONVAIR FORMS MACH 2 CLUB

CONVAIR Division of General Dynamics Corp., San Diego, has formed "one of the most exclusive societies in the world"—the M-2 Club—made up of individuals who have flown twice the speed of sound or faster in a Convair aircraft.

Members of the M-2 Club will receive gold pins, membership certificates and numbered membership cards. No dues or initiation fees are required.

The Club was described by J. V. Naish, Convair President, as an informal organization composed of two wings, each with an executive director. B. A. Erickson, flight manager of Convair-Ft. Worth and Chief Test Pilot for the B-58 Hustler, is director of the Bomber Wing. R. L. Johnson, Convair's Chief Engineering Test Pilot on the F-106A Delta Dart at Edwards AFB, Calif., is director of the Interceptor Wing.

To qualify for membership, eligible individuals may apply to the executive director of either the Interceptor or Bomber Wings, giving name, address, date and location of Mach 2 flight, type of aircraft, and the name of one person who can certify the flight.

Pentagon Boosts Contract Awards

Obligation of Department of Defense funds for major procurement in March amounted to $2.4 billion—the highest monthly rate of obligation during the past two fiscal years.

The March figure brings the total obligated for procurement in the January-March 1958 quarter, to about $4.6 billion, as compared to $3.9 for the October-December 1957 quarter and $2.1 billion for July-September 1957.

Total obligations in the first three quarters of Fiscal Year 1958 (July 1957 through March 1958) amount to $10.6 billion. To meet the planned obligation goal of $16 billion for Fiscal Year 1958, $5.4 billion would have to be obligated in the final quarter of the year (April-June).

Obligations for Military Construction in March totaled $153 million, which is roughly twice the monthly average prevailing in January and February 1958, and about four times the monthly average during the first half of Fiscal Year 1958. Obligations for Military Construction in the July-September 1957 quarter amounted to $107 million; the October-December 1957 quarter $124 million; and the January-March 1958 quarter $310 million. The rate of obligation for construction is expected to increase very sharply during the remaining three months of the Fiscal Year.

ECONOMY BLUEPRINT

Unification of the 28 different Armed Forces' specifications for engineering drawings will be attempted 27-28 May at Wright-Patterson AFB, Ohio.

One of a series to be held throughout the country, the meeting will be attended by representatives of both industrial and military organizations. Chairman will be James H. Mars, Assistant to the Chief Engineer of the Navy Bureau of Ordnance.

Col. Charles N. Howze, Chief of the Cataloging and Standardization Division of the AMC Directorate of Supply will be host.

At the present time, military procurement officials say, a manufacturer who makes the same item for both the Army and Air Force may have to prepare different sets of engineering drawings for each of the Services to meet their respective differences in specifications.

Hughes Official Says 4800 Rounds A Minute Target Of Navy's New 20mm Cannon

NAAS EL CENTRO, CALIF.

Spectators who attended the fire power demonstration which followed the Third Annual Naval Air Weapons Meet here were amazed at the tremendous firing rate of a 20mm cannon shown for the first time.

A demonstration team first shot the standard Navy gun which has a firing rate of from 1,050 to 1,100 rounds per minute. The steady, staccato popping sound of the gun was overwhelmed when the trigger of the new Mark 11 cannon was squeezed. An uninterrupted ripping sound split the desert air as 20mm slugs spewed out slugs at the rate of 4,000 per minute.

The Mark 11 is designed to be carried on fighter and attack planes in underwing pods which can be detached by means of two simple connections in a matter of seconds.

Two of these lethal pods guns will give Navy planes 16 times the fire power of WWII 20mm cannon.

The weapons was developed by the Hughes Tool Company's Aircraft Division, Culver City, Colo., plant, under sponsorship of the Bureau of Ordnance.

A Hughes official told THE JOURNAL his firm believes it will be able to improve the cannon so that it will fire up to 4,800 rounds per minute. The theoretical rate is 5,000 a minute.

He said that one of the advantages of the Mark 11 is that a pilot can begin firing at a slow rate as he fixes on his target by depressing the trigger very slightly. Once the target is hit, the pilot can bear down on the trigger and saturate his objective.

Another advantage, he pointed out, is that the gun—unlike the Army's Vulcan gun—knows when it misfires. When the Mark 11 misfires the gun stops operating. The Vulcan, on the other hand, it was said, continues to rotate and "chews up the gun."

The Mark 11 gun, was designed on principles developed by Frank Marquant of the Bureau of Ordnance.

A series of seven test firings from a McDonnell F3F "Demon" have been flown from the Naval Ordnance Test Station, Chincoteague, Va., "with results that have been more than pleasing," a Navy spokesman said. The pilot reported no vibration when the high-speed cannon was fired.

Officials said the container greatly increases an aircraft's versatility and the variety of its interchangeable armament, adding cannon to weapons already customarily carried externally, such as rockets, guided missiles and bombs. Such weapons can be used at a commander's option, providing a free choice, according to a tactical situation, not possible with built-in weapons.

There are some missions, they said, such as a bombing trip, on which the plane can deliver its load and make its return with greater speed and safety if it has no guns at all. When the plane's guns are built in, it must pay the penalty on such missions of reduced range and performance by carrying them as space-consuming dead-weight items. The guns cannot readily be removed, since removal in most cases would disturb the aircraft's balance. In the case of the externally-carried gun container they can be mounted and dismounted at will.

Until the development of the gun container the only alternative to built-in guns has been to eliminate guns entirely. The externally carried gun thus "allows us to have our cake and eat it too," the developers said.

They said the gun container or pod idea is not new, but that it was not practical until the compact, high-rate guns recently came on the military scene.

The Navy said that although no production contract has yet been let, it was possible that the new gun "could be in service in 1960." A contract of $6 million would be large enough to equip all the Navy's Douglas A4D's.

GENERAL W. G. WYMAN, Commanding General, U. S. Continental Army Command, left, chats with his former commander, Lt. Gen. Clarence Huebner, USA-Ret., Director of the National Association of State and Territorial Civil Defense Directors, at the Association's meeting in Washington. General Wyman gave the Army's position on Civil Defense in a talk before the Association. General Wyman was assistant commander of the 1st Infantry Division under General Huebner when the "Big Red One" stormed the Normandy beaches on D-Day.

UCLA Opens Teaching Course For Retired; VA Issues Rules On Compensation

The University of California at Los Angeles will launch this Summer a special program to qualify retired military personnel for teaching credentials for high schools and junior colleges.

Similar programs are in effect at Purdue University and Duke University.

Students at UCLA must devote four semesters to part-time study, along with two years of teaching and three eight-week summer sessions while working toward a master's degree and a California teaching certificate.

For details, write to Dr. Howard E. Wilson, Dean, School of Education, University of California, Los Angeles 24, Calif.

A NEW LAW permits a Reservist drawing nondisability retired pay to receive Veterans Administration compensation or pension if he waives an equal amount of his retired pay.

The new act, Public Law 85-376, becomes effective 1 May.

Under previous laws, the waiver privilege was open to all retired members of the regular Armed Forces, but to Reservists only if they were retired for physical disability.

The new law gives equal waiver privileges to all veterans receiving retired pay for either Regular or Reserve military service.

VA said Reservists must be otherwise eligible for compensation or pension to take advantage of the waiver.

COMPTROLLER SETS 10 YEAR RETIRED LIMIT

Retired Service personnel who have had their retired or retainer pay retroactively increased by Congress or a court decision cannot collect for any periods prior to 10 years before they submit their claim to the Comptroller General.

Even when errors or misinformation by other government departments are involved, the Comptroller said in B-135691, the 10 year statute of limitations applies.

They Keep Busy

COL. LESLIE M. STEWART, USA-Ret., has associated as a Registered Representative with the stock exchange firm of Filor, Bullard & Smyth, 26 Broadway, New York City.

COL. KENNETH W. KLISE, USAF-Ret., has joined Page Communications Engineers, 710 14th St., Washington, D. C., as a project manager. He recently returned from Subic Bay in the Philippines where he had charge of installing Navy communications and electronic facilities as Chief Engineer for the Pomroy-Hawaiian Dredging-Bechtel group.

LT. COL. LAWRENCE A. FLORO, USA-Ret., who retired in September as Executive Officer of the Army Support Center, St. Louis, has been appointed Acting Postmaster of Smithton, Pa. His nomination for permanent postmaster has been submitted to the Senate by President Eisenhower.

Title III Back Pay Will Be Delayed

All the Services foresee a delay, possibly a long one, before they can authorize retroactive retired pay for reservists retired under Title III of P.L. 810.

They say it may take "months" before they can set up procedures to process the expected flood of applications.

Back retired pay from 29 June 1948 or the date the "Title III" reservists met the age and length of service qualifications for retirement, whichever is later, has been authorized by the Comptroller General. In ComGen Decision B-113387, he reversed previous rulings and said he would follow the Segrave decision of the Court of Claims on the subject. (See last week's JOURNAL)

The settlements, Pentagon officials said, could range from a few dollars to thousands in individual cases.

Comptroller Bucks Court On Dual Compensation

The Comptroller General has refused to follow the U. S. Court of Claims ruling in Sarles v. U. S. which would give retired Reserve and National Guard officers an exemption from dual compensation provisions after they have been discharged from the Reserve or National Guard.

In deciding against the claim of Col. Rex C. Boland, the Comptroller said in decision B-135114 that although he could collect both his retired pay and government salary from 1947 to 1951, he could not be exempted from the dual compensation laws after 31 January 1951, when he was discharged from the National Guard. He was retired from active duty for physical disability in 1947.

Colonel Boland is Director of Professional Services at the Veterans Administration Hospital, Little Rock, Ark.

In the Sarles case, the Claims Court discarded the contention that persons entitled to retired pay under Section 2 of the 1948 Reserve Officers Retirement Act because of age or length of service as a commissioned officer may be exempted from dual compensation provisions only as long as he holds a commission in the National Guard. The Court said that the exemption for Reserve and National Guard officers retired under the 1948 act should not be terminated when they are discharged from their commissions.

AMC TRIES THE MAIL FOR O'SEA SUPPLY

The Air Materiel Command has begun a six-month test for sending lightweight supplies overseas by mail.

All supplies which weigh less than 25 pounds and which cannot be consolidated with other parcels going to the same destination will be shipped via the Air Post Office.

Top priority items will be sent by commercial airmail. Middle priority shipments will go by "ordinary mail," truck or rail to the aerial port of embarkation for MATS airlift overseas. Lowest priority items will go surface mail all the way.

Primary objective of the test is to determine the door-to-door transportation time between AMC activities in the U. S. and the using organizations overseas. Other aims include the measurement of man hours and packaging and handling costs for the mail shipments.

Senate Set To Act On Service Pay Hike; May Boost President's Revised Request

erals and rear admirals, lower half. Top-rank cuts of up to $175 were recommended by the Administration.

One technical amendment, previously reported in THE JOURNAL, is expected to be adopted by the Senate. This would raise to six years' active Federal service as an enlisted man the requirement for inclusion in the special officer pay table. The House bill provides special officer pay rates for persons who have four years cumulative service as enlisted members.

Another change that has been considered by the Senate would be to adopt the pay scales for O-2, O-3 and O-4 ranks voted by the House, instead of the reduced proposals of the Administration.

As THE JOURNAL went to press, the Stennis Subcommittee was preparing to report the bill to the full Armed Services Committee, under Senator Richard Russell, (D-Ga.).

The way has been cleared with Senator Lyndon Johnson (D-Tex.), Majority Leader, for a quick vote in the Senate probably early next week, although there was some possibility a vote might come this weekend.

A number of Senators have urged that the bill be amended to include special pay for lawyers. THE JOURNAL was told, however, that the Stennis Subcommittee would not endorse this suggestion. However, a floor fight could develop on the aspect of the pay legislation.

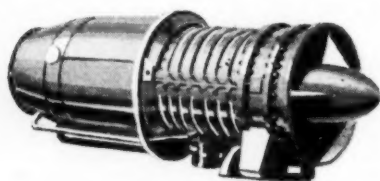

In addition to the prospective upward revision in the Senate of the Administration's latest pay proposals for O-2, O-3 and O-4 ranks, it is believed that similar boosts will be recommended in E-5, E-6 and E-7 ranks.

JETSTAR
TRANSPORT to new record

Answering the need for a much faster transport for military and business use, Lockheed's new Jetstar with Curtiss-Wright turbojet engines recently set a new unofficial record by spanning the continent from California to Georgia in 3 hours and 29 minutes. The Jetstar cut more than 1 3/4 hours from the former transport mark, averaging 557 miles per hour and reaching a top speed of 572 miles per hour. In test flights, the Jetstar has flown over 630 miles per hour.

Curtiss-Wright TJ-37 turbojet engines . . . product of the cooperative engineering of Curtiss-Wright and Bristol Aero-Engines, Ltd., of Great Britain . . . have a thrust-weight ratio of 4.9 . . . the highest thrust-weight ratio for any current turbojet engine in service today. The TJ-37 is typical of the Curtiss-Wright program that seeks to bring to the United States better products faster, through reciprocal engineering agreements with leading companies in other countries of the Free World.
